LEVELLING THE HUMMOCKS

The most cheerful sight along West Main street in many days was witnessed by motorists who chanced along that highway on Wednesday. A force of several men with a road scraper were busily at work levelling out the hummocks and filling in the holes in the highway from Manles corner to Disphan street. Those who have driven over this strip of road have bumped and cursed as they went and not only will the improved condition of the highway bumped and cursed as they went and not only will the improved condition of the highway bushes and not only will the improved condition of the highway the strip of the stri have bumped and cursed as they went and not only will the improved condition of the highway be a physical comfort but it will also have an equally beneficial effect to the soul of mankind.
